

UWIC students MSc. Dissertations

Copies of the dissertations listed below are held by UWIC. Members wishing to access the dissertations should contact Paul Belcher on 02920 416856 or by e mail at pcbelcher@uwic.ac.uk

Key Word/s	Title
Campylobacter	An evaluation of the public health significance and investigation of sporadic Campylobacter infection in Wales and in Rhondda Cynon Taff CBC
CLEA	An evaluation of the CLEA model
Contaminated land	A review of risk prioritisation models
Environmental Management Systems	A critical appraisal of the potential benefits of EMS within the paper and board industry
Landfill waste sites	An investigation into the influence of tidal state upon methane gas levels across a former estuarine land fill sites
Landfill waste sites	A critical evaluation of the epidemiological evidence relating to risks of adverse health effect as associated with residence near waste landfill sites
Lift trucks	The safe operation of lift trucks in retail warehousing
Occupational Stress	A critical analysis of the HSE management standards in relation to occupational stress
Pollution Control	The development of pollution control regimes in the UK since 1973
Pollution – traffic generated	Risk assessment into the effects of urban traffic generated pollution within two office buildings adjacent to a busy traffic intersection
Noise exposure	A study into noise exposure of persons employed in entertainment venues in Swansea
Recycled paper	Attitudes, beliefs and behaviour towards the use of recycled office paper in the FTSE 100 and 250 companies
Risk communication	An evaluation of risk communication techniques for folding events in south Wales. A case study of the Vale of Glamorgan
Sustainable development - tourism	A critical evaluation of methods used to achieve sustainable tourism development
Water - potable	A review of potential microbiological hazards in potable water, and the systems in Royal Navy warships for managing the associated risks
Woodland burials	Risk perception of woodland burials