Public Health: Embracing Challenge

April 28 and 29 2010, Hilton Hotel, Cardiff

The CIEH Wales annual conference 2010 is entitled 'Public Health : Embracing Challenge '. It takes place on 28 and 29 April 2010 at the Hilton Hotel in Cardiff and will be addressed by a number of high quality speakers and will feature a live political debate centred around public health and chaired by Sarah Dickens from BBC Wales.

There are 2 free student places at the conference

James and Associates, specialists in Environmental Health Recruitment nationwide and RH Environmental, leading environmental health consultancy and quality service provider to local authorities have each kindly agreed to sponsor one full delegate place at the conference. The sponsored places includes delegate fee, accommodation at the conference hotel and attendance at the conference drinks reception and dinner.

The free places are offered to environmental health students living or studying in Wales. The competition is open to both undergraduate and post graduate students.

How to enter

Students are required to submit an article of no more than 1000 words on the following topic:

With the use of appropriate examples identify the three biggest environmental health challenges currently facing practitioners, and suggest ways of tackling them.

Entries, without any identifying marks, should be submitted as a word document by email titled 'PH:EC – Student Competition Entry' to wales@cieh.org . Closing date for entries is 29 January 2010, the winning student will be notified by 12 February 2010. The prize is as stated, there is no cash alternative.

The winning entries will be reproduced in full in the conference delegate brochure.
